Reply to Roudier et al.: HLA-DRB1 polymorphism, anti-citrullinated protein antibodies, and rheumatoid arthritis

DOI 10.1074/jbc.RL118.003013

Yi Tian Ting, Anthony W. Purcell, Hugh H. Reid, and Jamie Rossjohn

From the Infection and Immunity Program and Department of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology, Biomedicine Discovery Institute, Monash University, Clayton, Victoria 3800, Australia

Edited by Peter Cresswell

This is a response to a letter by Roudier et al. (1).

While the authors find no fault with the experiments per se reported in Ref. 2, some differences against the previous reports highlighted by the authors are likely attributable to differing sensitivities and methodologies of the authors' assays, the peptides used, and the lack of structural resolution of their observations.

References
